One of these new and until now suppressed items I believe is exculpatory is the April 11, 1968 lab report to the Memphis office under the code name "MURKIN," apparently standing for Murder of King.

At the bottom of the first pages it says this mark on the windowsill could have been made by the rifle's muzzle.

But the very last words are: Read.

No muzzle blast, and essential. And no marks from the rifle forcing the screen out, as alleged or from wood or paint.

Worse, with this the wrong half of the windowsill the crazy desparate cops took, there would have had to have been a hole in the rest, pointing downward. There isn't.

Worse still, comparing the FBI's chart (hold up) and the UPI picture (hold up), how in the world was a man geoing to get behind a 42" rifle and then shoot.
